AGUATINA SETS PORT RECORD

First Passenger Alights at Pier Within Hour After Leaving Quarantine.

When the Commodore Aquatina, which made a record docking last night, was in midsea an American efficiency expert asked the skipper, Capt. Sir James Charles, who won knighthood by war valor, at what hour he expected to dock on Friday. The skipper answered with true efficiency positiveness:

"Promptly at 6:30 P. M."

That is what he did, but he had to do some tall hustling up the bay and the Hudson to make good, and guide the big ship into her berth as if she were just a ferryboat instead of a many storied 45,000-ton liner.

Capt. Sir James did not like the prospect when the Aquatina, after a rather stormy passage from Southampton and Cherbourg, anchored in Quarantine at 3:30 in the afternoon, with 6,282 souls of letter mail and 497 packages of parcels post. But the mail boat men worked swiftly, and the health officer found everybody well aboard, and at 5:30 the ship received pratique, as the ancients say.

Then the skipper started to equal or beat the express train schedules of all lands. He found a clear course in clear daylight and the Aquatina went up the bay almost as if she were in a millpond ocean slicing the water as never any other ship has on her course from Quarantine, and all according to the law of the port.

Tide favored the adventure of getting the great ship into dock in ten minutes, which was all the time left to the skipper to fulfill his promise, as it had taken him forty minutes to reach the end of the pier and straighten out to make a stab for the slip. He was calm and game to attempt the trick. He is a modest man, but he indicates by his expression when he saw the first passenger run down the gang plank at exactly 6:30 by the wrist watch of Staff Captain F. E. Storey that he felt pretty good about it.

No other liner, big or little, ever has tied up at her dock an hour after leaving Quarantine, although other liners have docked in less time after arriving off the end of their pier.

The Aquatina carried a host of optimistic Americans, all of whom found Europe on the way to better times. Sir William Wiseman, of Kuala Lumpur, said the economic and industrial world was much healthier than a year ago. Europe now understood that America would stay out of conference, and she would see the situation clearer. Lloyd George had gone to diagnose the diseases of Europe and he was bringing Russia into the daylight of publicity. Later she will be able to take care of herself.

Col. William E. Wood, chief of staff of Kodman Wamankama's police reserves, who took Mr. Wamankama's wedding gift of silver candelabra to Princess Mary, said that although money was tight in England and folks were not spending it freely business was nevertheless getting better. The betterment of the exchange rate had helped and he looked for pre-war conditions soon.

LOSES "DARDANELLE" MOTION.
Fred Fisher, Inc., music publisher, was denied a temporary injunction yesterday by Judge Knox in the United States District Court restraining the producers of the musical comedy "Good morning, Dearie" from using music which it was alleged, had been taken from "Dardanelle" upon which Fisher holds the copyright.

The motion was argued before Judge Knox, who is presiding over the case, and the producers of "Dardanelle," T. B. Harms Co., Jerome Kern, Anne Caldwell and Edward Royce were named as defendants. In denying the motion Judge Knox said the producers were responsible for the use of the music and the responsibility of the success would be reduced materially by the cutting out of the song.

MRS. HACKETT LEFT $589,092.
Mrs. Helen H. Hackett, mother of Harold H. Hackett, well known tennis player, left a net estate of $589,092, principally in stocks and bonds, according to an appraisal filed yesterday by the New York State Tax Commissioner.

Mrs. Hackett, who lives at 325 West 15th street, and Mrs. Grace Hackett, Thurmidge of Boston are the residuary legatees and executrix. Mrs. Hackett died January 6, 1921.

Notes of the Stage
After to-night's performance "The Mountain Man," with Sidney Blackmer, at the Thirty-third Street Theater, will go away for the health.

William A. Brady has received offers from Paris for the early production of "Bought and Paid For" and "The Man Who Came Back," and is sailing with his wife, Grace George, Tuesday, to examine them at close range.

Miss Chetivie Norman leaves "The Nest" at the Forty-second Street Theater after to-night's performance, and Miss Alice Fleming will encoise herself in the part.

Port Levy will give his farewell appearance this season on Sunday night in the Sam H. Harris Theater at the benefit of the district Memorial Hospital for Aged and Infirm. He will tell some stories, as he is sailing for London on Tuesday.

Van and Schenck gave a charity party for 200 fellow members of the Solax Club at the Palace last night, and a delegation of the club presented to each of them an elaborate gift while they were on the stage and counted escape.

Miss Ruth Nugent will appear with J. C. Nugent and Elliott Nugent in "Kempy," but there is little likelihood after the matinee performance to-day, for no other reason than that it is her birthday. Eddie Cantor presented her with a cake, bidding a large one so that there would be plenty of room for any number of candles desired.

"The Hotel Monaco" in which Miss Frances White and Taylor Holmes are starring at the Shubert Theater, will have room found for R. at the Century Theater in London recently, with an English cast feeling at home in its Riviera atmosphere.

FILM STAR CHARITY CONTEST OPENS WITH PARADE TO-DAY

Final Arrangements Made at Luncheon at Which Will H. Hays Tells Society Women and Actresses They Are to Do Splendid Work.

A get together tea was given yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Plaza to Mrs. Will H. Hays and others prominent in the motion picture industry to discuss plans for the May Carnival being conducted by the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor to raise funds for the needy by selling votes at 10 cents each for the most popular screen actor and actress. Mr. Hays, as head of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, was one of the speakers.

Mr. Hays, who said he left his office to help, and would be available at any time, remarked:

"All of you have come to work in this worthy affair—this carnival, popularity contest and ball. You are going to help the poor of New York. The Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor finds itself in need of more funds. This meeting is to help raise the funds it needs."

"Our industry came into this movement as the result of excellent suggestions made by Mrs. Courtland D. Barnes, whose idea this voting contest in New York city is. We are here to assist ourselves that we will make a contest of it, and I think we will do it by good, hard work."

Mr. Loew to Head Campaign.
He aroused enthusiasm with the announcement that Mr. Loew had volunteered to head the organization of the campaign devoting all his time to it until the drive is over on the night of May 1, when the King and Queen of the movies will be crowned at the carnival ball at the Hotel Astor. Mr. Loew said he had closed his door and wouldn't look at his own mail until the campaign was over. Mr. Zukor promptly volunteered as his assistant.

A round of applause greeted the statement from Bernard Edmonds, of the Motion Picture Theater Owners Chamber of Commerce that his organization would turn over the 360 picture houses it controlled in the city to the executive committee of the campaign, of which Mr. Courtland D. Barnes is chairman. He said the theaters could be used for May 1, when the campaign, including the sale of ballots, speeches and personal appearances of stars. This announcement was regarded by those present as all the more welcome because it was the first permission granted for

CHURCH IS WARNED IN VONSLATSKY CASE

Russian's Marriage to Mrs. Ream Stephens Regarded as Legal, Says Priest.

Assurance was given at the Russian Cathedral of St. Nicholas yesterday that no secret annulment of an alleged former marriage of Anastase Vonslatzky to Marie, Liouboff Mouroumky in Paris, had been asked for or was contemplated for the reason that the existence of such a marriage has not yet been recognized by the church authorities.

Even the display of the cable dispatches to The New York Herald that Miss Mouroumky claims to have in her possession a marriage certificate with the signatures of Russian prelates and witnesses to the alleged ceremony at the Cathedral of Vailta in the Crimea, January 31, 1920, failed to shake the faith of ecclesiastical authorities in the legality of the marriage that was performed February 4, between the young Russian engineer and Mrs. Marion Ream Stephens, the Chicago heiress.

Father Lesinkovsky, secretary to the Metropolitan Platon, head of the Orthodox Russian Church here, admitted that a cable from the claimant in Paris had been received warning the church authorities that Vonslatzky would secure an annulment and protesting against such an action, but he said that Archbishop Alexander did not regard the communication as official.

"When we receive some official documents we will act," he said. "Anybody could send such a cable as that. How do you know it is from a young man in question?" When reminded that the marriage certificate, together with photographic copies of letters between Vonslatzky and Miss Mouroumky and other documents were being mailed by the claimant, the priest remarked:

"Ah, that will be different. Until then we shall regard the marriage which was here as legal. The church is so much trouble with these Russian marriages—Vonslatzky, Semenov, Elvay, body."

Previously reticent was Clarence Blair Mitchell, the lawyer of 40 Wall street, who issued a final and emphatic statement on Wednesday to the effect that his client, Vonslatzky, denied he had ever been married before. Mr. Mitchell did not mention in his statement that he had made a trip abroad some time ago in connection with the alleged Vonslatzky marriage, as claimed by the young woman in Paris, nor did he refer to having conducted any negotiations for an annulment with Edouard De Brans, the young woman's brother-in-law as set forth in the exclusive dispatches to THE NEW YORK HERALD from Paris.
